Storyboarding Exercise

Draw Your Face:

• Lightly draw the basic shape of the face, usually an oval
• Lightly draw a line down the vertical axis of the oval (this forms the center of the eyes nose and mouth)
• Lightly draw a horizontal line across the middle of the oval (this will form the horizontal center of the eyes)
• Lightly draw a horizontal line across the bottom ⅓ of the oval (this will form the base of the nose)
• Lightly draw another horizontal line dividing the bottom ⅓ of the oval in half again (this will form the base of the lips)
• Using this sketch as a framework for your face, and either a picture of yourself or a mirror, add the necessary details to complete a sketch of your face in close up.
• Repeat the process this time drawing yourself as a medium shot, also add some background elements so that you appear in a hallway.
• Repeat the process this time drawing yourself as a long shot, also add some background elements so that you appear in an outdoor setting.
